Introduction:

The International Medical Fair India 2010 Conference will provide a unique look at the Indian healthcare industry and the attendant issues that it faces - availability, access, affordability, and quality. The conference will be held alongside the 16th International Exhibition on Diagnostic, Medical Equipment and Technology at Bombay Exhibition Centre, Mumbai from 12-14 March 2010. The Indian socio-economic and demographic profile is changing rapidly. Accessibility to healthcare for the masses across the country is becoming an increasingly critical and relevant issue. In addition, quality in manufacturing as well as the service sectors is being given greater importance considering India's prominent status as a healthcare destination.

Why:

The International Medical Fair India 2010 Conference will bring together a multi-stakeholder platform comprising vendors; service providers; hospital purchase, infection control, and administration departments; diagnostic, clinical & pathology laboratories; doctors, surgeons, scientists, technologists; Health & Welfare agencies; and others on one common platform. The conference will enable us to keep abreast with the cutting edge developments in the field of diagnostics, medical equipments and technology.
